Charlene is a corporate and international tax expert with over 20 years' experience. She shaped Nexia's Sustainability and environmental, social, and governance (ESG) services. She leads research on carbon offsetting through wetlands, transforming environmental insights into practical business solutions.

With over two decades of experience in corporate and international taxation, Charlene brings extensive expertise and a strategic mindset to delivering tailored advisory solutions across diverse sectors, including energy, technology, mining and agribusiness.

Her ability to navigate complex tax landscapes has made her a trusted advisor to businesses seeking clarity and confidence in their global operations. Her dedication to sustainability and responsible business practices has made her an essential part in developing Nexia Australia's Sustainability and ESG services.

Charlene's played a key role in our double materiality assessment and in creating Nexia Australia's first Responsible Business Report, which are important milestones in our journey toward a more sustainable future.

Currently, Charlene is leading innovative research to quantify the carbon offsetting potential of constructed wetlands. By integrating environmental and economic perspectives, her work aims to demonstrate the measurable value of carbon sequestration and show how science-driven insights can be translated into practical, business-relevant strategies.

Charlene's commitment to sustainability, combined with her technical expertise, makes her a trusted advisor and an influential voice driving meaningful change for clients and communities.
